Community Loses Estimable Couple

Our community has lost heavily in the removal of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Shouldice who have left the farm and taken up residence in Calgary.

Some time ago Mr. and Mrs. Shouldice came to live on the farm of their son, D. R. M. Shouldice. During their short sojourn in the district they won the hearts of all who met them. There was no enterprise to which they did not give of their best.

For many years they been in the west and literally have grown up with our national leaders. At the outbreak of the war both Russel and his father enlisted and Mrs. Shouldice joined the Captain and Russel in England. On returning to Canada they settled in Vancouver.

Many articles from the pen of Mrs. Shouldice have appeared in papers of both east and west. She was most active in literary and social circles.

There are few indeed who appreciated more the kindness shown them by the neighbours. And on every occasion they showed themselves the best of guests and the most generous of hosts. The Resource joins with their many friends in wishing them every happiness in their new home.

Regular Meeting of Community Club

The regular monthly meeting of the Community Club was held at the home of Mrs. A. A. Cliford on Tuesday afternoon of this week. There were 10 members and one visitor present.

Owing to the absence of the president, the vice-president, Mrs. R. H. Bishop, presided. The business was dealt with and it was decided to raffle the Afghan and pillow. If arrangements can be made with the management it will be filled at the Saturday night picture show on November 25th. Any one wishing to procure tickets before this date may do so from any of the members.

Lending Library to be Discussed

It was suggested at the last meeting of the P.T.A. that this association form a member's lending library.

This project will be thoroughly discussed at the regular meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Kemper on Monday, Nov. 13th at 8 p.m. Everybody interested is cordially invited to attend.

Remembrance Day

The 11th day of November has been set apart by the Government of Canada as "Remembrance Day." On this date fifty years ago the Great War ended. A war which lasted over four years and in which 502,208 men and women of the British Empire, including 60,000 Canadians, laid down their lives for honour, justice and freedom, principles for which we too should be "ever ready to live or die valiantly."

"Remember Day" is not a holiday; it is a Holy Day, sacred to the memory of our heroic dead. It reminds us that Canada stood with the other great Dominions side by side with the Motherland; that nearly 600,000 Canadians were under arms; that 2520 nurses enlisted; that both nurses and men proved themselves equal to those who had many years of training for active service; that thousands of broken hearts and bodies and blighted lives resulted; and that 60,000 Canadians lie sleeping in the "Gardens of the Dead" in Flanders and other battlefields. Why? The answer is given in the words of Sir Robert Borden, then Prime Minister:—"Not for love of battle, not for lust of conquest, not for greed of possessions, but for the cause of honour, to maintain solemn pledges, to uphold principles of liberty."

You are familiar with the following words: "My duty to my country is to love it, to obey and maintain its laws, to respect its institutions and to defend it against all enemies." This is exactly what those brave men and women did who gave their lives for the land they loved. Is it not fitting, therefore, that this day should be set apart as a memorial to them and as an opportunity for us to salute them in reverence and gratitude.

There are set up in almost every city, town and village in Canada, memorials to these heroes who gave their lives for the cause of our country. The gratitude of all your lives, for on them are engraved the names of who made the supreme sacrifice that you might be free. Contributed by Rev. J. F. Butcher, Chaplin, Medicine Hat Branch, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L.

Initiative

Initiative, or the lack of it, the development or the denial of it, appear to be quite common subjects of discussion in these days of the Great Depression. On the one hand, people are heard to say that adoption of the programme of the Socialists would result in the destruction of individual initiative, while, on the other hand, exponents of Socialism ask what initiative is left to the individual and what initiative has an unemployed man subduing on Government relief?

Both are wrong. Socialism could not destroy individual initiative even if it would, because initiative is an attribute of the human individual, and it can be, has been, and always will be developed under any conceivable kind of government system, or under any circumstances. Initiative is God-given and cannot be destroyed, although its expression in definite action may be hindered, even for a time prevented.

Nor is it correct to say that present day conditions are destructive of initiative, and that there is no room for its exercise by many people at this time. Rather, the reverse is true. Necessity is said to be the mother of invention, and invention is only possible where initiative is first displayed. The necessities of the present are, therefore, an urge to greater rather than less initiative.

Not only so, but evidence is not lacking, rather it is available on every hand, demonstrating the fact that greater initiative is being manifested by thousands of individual individuals than they ever thought of exercising in the days of prosperity.

After all, what is initiative? A simple dictionary definition says it is an introductory act or step; the first active procedure in any enterprise; power of taking the lead or of originating. That is, a baby shows initiative when it begins to crawl, an infant when it takes its first toddling steps.

But it can be encouraged, or discouraged, its development can be assisted or retarded. Parents and teachers have a very great responsibility in this respect. Employers, too, have an obligation in much the same way towards their employees. If they are to be encouraged to be initiative, it is to them our duty, as well as to the government, to advance the conditions which will encourage and assist their workers to display initiative in the tasks allotted to them. While it may be true, as sometimes charged, that Capitalism operates in some ways to lessen initiative, it is also true that in quite as many other ways Capitalism has promoted initiative.

Capitalism, but under what system may be in vogue in a country, may develop initiative in individual citizens but of a whole people and country. Too much paternalism in a home is a deadly influence upon the development of the initiative of a child, weakening its self-reliance and sapping its courage. In like manner, too much paternalism in government operates as a deadly influence upon the citizenship of a country, weakening the self-reliance of the people, and sapping their courage to meet the inevitable difficulties which are bound to come to all in life if met and, if success is to be achieved, overcome.

Parents should not be expected to do everything for their children; teachers should not do things for their pupils but train them to do everything they can do for themselves; only then will they be able to be good employers. Employers should not look upon their workers as mere cogs in a machine, but as thinking, intelligent human beings with personalities and abilities and thinking powers of their own to develop and use for the common good of all. Governments are the creation of people in the mass to do for them what they as individuals, cannot alone do for themselves, but Governments were never intended to do those services which the individual can and ought to do for himself and herself.

Referring back to our dictionary definition of initiative—that it is the power of taking the lead or of originating—the truth must be impressed upon us that, in the final analysis, it is the individual that must originate. In any event, the originator of the idea is the individual. If, for example, an individual who first originated the idea in the development of which the organized forces of all are finally directed, Governments are only groups of individuals, and their policies have their birth in the minds of individuals, and their acts of administration are but the carrying into effect of a policy resulting from the combined efforts of all. The wisdom, the will, the wisdom and value of which is ultimately received by all.

A man or woman lacking in initiative never goes very far. If they are content to let others do their reading, study and thinking for them, then, they will never become educated. If they are willing to lean upon others, and rely upon the judgment of others for decisions that may have to be made, then, they will always be dependent, and never independent. If they refuse to express themselves, to express themselves, they will go through life bereft of the influence they might and ought to have exercised upon their times and fellowmen.

Initiative is a power, let it be repeated, that all possess. But like all powers, it must be used, exercised, brought into play. Only so is it of any value, and only so can it develop, and made to the rich advantage of the life of the individual it ought to be, and only so can the results of its development bring to its possessors be won. It is a great gift, an imperishable gift, which should be highly prized, never surrendered, nor allowed to fall into disuse.

Science Comes To Aid
Can Help Narcotic Addicts To Overcome The Habit

Science has found a solution to the problem of the narcotic addict who attempts to free himself of the habit, anesthetist of the United States and Canada, and others at their annual congress recently in Chicago.

Three New York anesthetists related their success in blocking nerves by means of alcohol injections effective for days and weeks. They said that this was part of the torture of fever, nausea, neuralgia and other symptoms inevitably associated with stopping the use of a narcotic.

Most of the cases were those of persons who had discontinued the habit as the result of intense pain during sickness or injury. Dr. M. B. Greene of New York explained, adding that it was different when the subject used narcotics from desire and was not interested in breaking the habit.

ARM IN SLING WITH NEURITIS

A "token of gratification" this woman says she gives when she writes to her many patients.

For twelve months I have had neuritis in my arm, and up till the last two months I have been unable to sleep at night, and can only sleep in a sling. Since then I have abandoned my sling, and now I have all happened in two weeks, and I am again able to sleep.

During the last fortnight I shall have said goodbye to neuritis once and for all. Call it a token of gratification. — (Mrs.) N.E.L.

United States Banks Find Conditions In Britain Better

Quite talk about the marked improvement in British business conditions was J. P. Morgan, United States banker, on his return to New York from an extended visit to Great Britain.

Most silent on various questions concerning him concerning the domestic situation here, the N.R.A., the banking laws and inflation, Mr. Morgan did emphasize that England had turned the corner away from hard times.

"England is getting on very well. Improvement certainly is well set in there. The heavy industries are showing improvement and the whole situation is that things are better and improving."

New Submarine Chaser

Royal Air Force Machine Will Be Stationed At Brough

This Royal Air Force flying boat carrying a quick-firing gun, capable of firing shells, in addition to ordinary machine guns, has been completed by the Blackburn Airplane Company at Brough. The craft is designed principally for submarine chasing.

The new gun, which is mounted on a rotary turret in the forward cockpit, can fire 100 rounds per minute one and one-half pound shells over an effective range of 10,000 yards.

Two and one-half pounds of gunpowder are required to fire each shell. The gun will be able to absorb the impact of the gun when it is fired.

The gun will be able to fly 132 miles per hour with a maximum range of 1,500 miles at a wing speed of 97 feet and the length of 70 feet. It stands nearly 36 feet high. The new ship, named "Blackburn Perth," is one of four to be stationed at Malta.

Relief in Southern Alberta

Machinery of the provincial department of agriculture under which fodder relief is being handled in Southern Alberta this year called into action last week during the severe snow storm which visited the south, and caught many livestock raisers unprepared. Within 24 hours in some cases, railway cars were ready for the shipment of stock out of southern districts to feeding quarters farther north. Up to the present week, some 65 carloads of stock have been moved out to winter feeding quarters from those districts where feed is short. In addition to this more than 300 carloads of livestock feed have been shipped in by the provincial department to areas which suffered drought conditions. The movement of families from the dry areas has been proceeding and since the movement commenced in the summer 369 certificates have been issued for as many families, who have found new locations in northern Alberta.

A Stirring Appeal

On Friday evening, November 3, Count Nicholas Ignatieve, of Toronto, addresses the Canadian Club in Gleichen Community Hall!

The Count is a young member of a Russian family whose land was in Ukraine. During the Revolution of 1917 the family was disposed and banished and the student Nicholas completed his education in the universities of England. Later he immigrated to Canada, crossing the Atlantic with the steerage passengers. His first work in Canada was on a survey crew in New Ontario. At one time he was with a railway construction crew up in Peace River.

He is very tall, broad-shouldered and of sandy complexion. His anecdotes about being taken for an Englishman from Liverpool bears every resemblance of truth. One might easily take him for an Oxford Don. His English is particularly good and as he spoke one quite forgot the slight hesitancy which occasionally crept into his speech. And he was complete master of his theme, the contribution of the new Canadian and a plea for a better understanding.

Very aptly he traced the genealogies of our two "wheat kings," whose ancestors had served in Napoleon's army when he marched on Moscow. The one had settled in Sweden, a younger generation had migrated to the States and a still younger to the Peace River. The other had settled in Germany, his children migrated to America and still later children settled in the neighborhood of Stavely. And a maternal grandfather of the speaker was the Russian general who met Napoleon and fired Moscow.

Attention was drawn to the fact that the New Canadian had been largely responsible for the railway development of this country and for that reason it was his as well as belonging to the Anglo-Saxons. The advertising used in persuading them to leave the old lands had not always been of the best type and tended to draw least industrial. This often lead to disappointment for them. Loyalty to their old traditions meant that they would also be loyal to the land of their adoption and the idea was not an annihilation of the former but a blending, out of which would arise a better life for both.

During the whole address the impression was that the speaker's information was first hand. He had associated most closely with these people. Just before he started this tour, he was hitchhiking across the west. One cold night he and several others were literally side-tracked in a box car. He started with his pack to find a place for the night when he was stopped by a policeman who suggested that he come with him to warmer quarters. Sentences as long as six weeks had been passed on transients in that district and for the moment it looked as if he might be unable to meet his appointment.

An "Old Favorites" Contest

Our attention has been drawn to an interesting Contest just launched by the Family Herald and Weekly Star. $1500.00 are offered in cash prizes to those most successfully solving a set of picture puzzles.

Each puzzle picture illustrates the title of an "Old Favorite" song, the object of the contest being to name each one of them correctly. A book featuring 1600 old favorite song titles has been compiled by the publishers. This book contains all of the songs that the puzzle pictures illustrate. A copy is given to every active contestant as aid. The pictures are very cleverly drawn and provide interesting entertainment to those taking part. The title of the Contest itself, as the name implies, brings back to mind those old familiar tunes which never seem to grow old and recall memories of those happy days when they were the current musical hits.

Any of our readers will find it well worth while dropping a line to the Family Herald and Weekly Star, at Montreal, for full details of this Contest which will be gladly sent to anyone interested, along with a sample copy of the paper.

"A Brew Wee Land"

Alberta Boy's Essay on Scotland

The fame of Scotland has reached Alberta and impressed a boy in this progressive centre of civilization. This is his prize essay on the land of Ossian and Burns:

Scotland is a "Braw wee land" in the North of England. It has water all around it and whiskey all over it. The population is four and a half millions including Andrew Carnegie. It has a peculiar language of its own and if you can pronounce it correctly and coherently it is a sure proof of sobriety. The country has considerable wealth but very little of it finds its way out.

Gold has been discovered in certain districts in the pockets of certain natives. The best known exports are Harry Lauder and Scotch whiskey, though sufficient of the latter is retained in the country to satisfy the demands of home consumption. The natural dress of the people is the kind of petticoat. In pattern it resembles a chess-board, although in cold weather the wearer finds it more like a draught-board. It was invented because the trousers were unable to find trousers big enough to get their feet through.

Bagpipes provide the only music of the country. It is a weird instrument, which when blown, produces something similar to a growl. On many occasions, during the Great War, the Scottish regiments marched to death, listening to the strains of the bagpipes, and in many cases it was doubtful whether it was the enemy or the music which caused the heavy casualties.

The chief national characteristic is said to be reckless expenditure.

Hockey

The business men and others of Arrowwood are showing the right spirit when they subscribed for new uniforms for the hockey boys. There is nothing that conveys a better impression than to see any athletic team with all members dressed alike. We have a number of good players and the Arrowwood Hockey team, we believe, will do their part to put our town on the map through this popular winter sport.

If you are in need of a radio, Philco is the answer. The new 1934 Philco battery set is reduced in price and their sensitivity and selectivity are unusually high for a battery receiver, and the undistorted output is practically equivalent to an A.C. set.
